What They Learn

Fourth and fifth graders learn and practice the pro-social skills needed to be a helpful classmate, friend, and family and community member. Skills are taught directly and practiced through stories, games, and cooperative and competitive activities.

Social Bridges 4-5 curriculum focuses on the following core skills: Following social rules, emotional regulation, flexibility, communication skills, social filter, and social prediction.

Parents receive weekly written communication on their child's individual social goals and suggestions for practicing, reinforcing, and coaching skills at home.
